HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

In 1959, Aldo Uberti founded A. Uberti, S.r.I. in the village of Gardone Val Trompia in the Italian Alps and began making replicas of Civil War era cap and ball revolvers. Over the years, as the experience and skill of his craftsmen grew, Uberti expanded into replicas of classic lever-action rifles, cowboy six-shooters and big game rifles. Not only are the Uberti guns exacting replicas down to the finest detail, but with modern machinery and materials they're actually better than the originals.

Take to the field. Competitors in the fast growing sport of Cowboy Action Shooting have been quick to recognize that Uberti guns set the standard by which others are judged. Currently the Uberti 1873 lever-action is the sport's most popular rifle and the 1873 Cattleman revolver is the hottest selling Cowboy Action handgun. However, Uberti firearms aren't just for target shooting—they were designed to take afield. Whether you target shoot or big game hunt, Uberti puts excitement and adventure back into shooting.

Black Powder Revolver

1847 WALKER

ITEM Number	MODEL	CALIBER	BARREL LENGTH	MATERIALS	MSRP
340200	Walker	.44	9"	C/H Frame, Steel B/S, Brass T/G	$429

SPECIFICATIONS: Cylinder: 6-shot, engraved Number of grooves: 7 Twist: Left BBL: Round Total Length: 15.7" Weight: 4.5 lbs. Finish: Blue Grip: 1-pc Walnut

The Walker's large capacity cylinder allows it to hold up to 60 grains of black powder and offers easy access to the percussion caps.

The Walker was one of the first revolvers fitted with a loading lever. Colt later added a loading lever latch near the muzzle.

340830	Whitneyville	.44	7.5"	C/H Frame, Steel B/S, Brass T/G	$429

SPECIFICATIONS: Cylinder: 6-shot, engraved Number of grooves: 7 Twist: Left BBL: Round Total Length: 13.4" Weight: 4.1 lbs. Finish: Blue Grip: 1-pc Walnut

The Dragoons were the first Colt revolvers to feature a latch for the loading lever. This prevented the loading lever from falling during firing.

The Walker and all Dragoon models have integrated loading cut-outs for easy and secure seating of the percussion caps.

Modern machinery and improved materials result in a stronger and more precise metal-to-metal fit on Uberti's replica firearms.

Uberti's Cattleman series of single-action revolvers utilize a six-shot cylinder, which is loaded by bringing the hammer back to the half cock and swinging the loading gate downward to allow access to the cylinder chambers.

The New Model (NM) Cattleman features an improved cylinder-pin retainer, which is spring-loaded making it easier to release and remove the cylinder-pin. निर्देश करिये करिये के विश्व करिये हैं

All models of Uberti's 1874 Sharps rifles, excluding the Cavalry Carbine, feature double set-triggers, allowing the front trigger to be set to a very light pull-weight—an aid to accurate shooting.

The Creedmoor tang sights used on Sharps rifles were of three heights, depending on the yardage. The lowest, short-range sight was good to 300 yards, mid-range to about 600 yards and the long-range, to 1,200 yards and beyond.

The top tang on the Sharps receiver is drilled and tapped to accommodate the attachment of a Creedmoor rear sight.

ITEM # 356028 Case-hardened, A-Grade walnut, octagonal barrel

LIGHTNING SHORT RIFLE - 20"

ITEM # 356026 Case-hardened, A-Grade walnut, octagonal barrel

The Lightning rifle was originally introduced by Colt in 1884. After the manufacture of 185,000 Lightning rifles, there hasn't been a new one made since 1904-that is until now.

Like many lever-action rifles, the Lightning's color case-hardened receiver features top ejection and a side-loading gate for easy access to the tubular magazine.

1876 CENTENNIAL RIFLE - 28"

ITEM # 342500 Case-hardened, A-Grade walnut, straight stock, octagonal barrel

Introduced during the United States' 100th anniversary, Winchester's 1876 Rifle came to be known as the "Centennial" Rifle. Uberti's exact replica, true to the original in every detail, is chambered in .45/60, .45/75 and .50/95 and was a favored gun of Teddy Roosevelt.

The 1876 rifle includes a lever lock to ensure the lever remains securely in place.

The 28" barrel sports a Buckhorn adjustable rear sight and a blade front sight.

1885 HIGH-WALL SINGLE-SHOT CARBINE — 28"

ITEM #348700 Satin walnut, straight stock, round barrel.

John Browning's 1885 High-Wall was introduced at the end of the buffalo era, but made a name for itself during the golden age of target shooting when long-range rifle shooting competition was an international sport that was widely followed in the United States. Uberti offers three models of 1885 High-Walls in classic buffalo cartridges (.45/70, .45/90 and .45/120).

The 1885 High-Wall's loading lever (left), opens or locks the rifle's falling-block action (right).

The front sight of the High-Wall Sporting model is dovetailed into the octagonal barrel and can be drifted for windage.

STEEL STREET, STREET,

The Creedmoor tang sights used on Sharps rifles were of three heights, depending on the yardage. The lowest, short-range sight was good to 300 yards, the mid-range to about 600 yards and long-range to 1,200 yards and beyond.

At very long range, with the rear sight elevated nearly to its limit, it was important to keep the rifle completely level to maintain accuracy. Consequently, front globe sights were often fitted with a spirit level so that the shooter could see that the bubble was centered and the gun was level before he touched the trigger.
